*None of us lives for oneself, and no one dies for oneself.
...we live and we die for God who is our Life.*

Romans 14:7-9

For whom, for what, do I spend my life and energy?

How will I count and share with another
the WAYS LIVING GOD'S GOSPEL HAS LIBERATED MY LIFE?

Reflection: Christine Garcia, SSND; Design: Joyelle Proot, SSND

This essential truth unites us, namely that Christ died and rose so that each of us would live today and forever in him. In this life Christ is a forever living and loving presence. All life is lived in Christ. In every place Christ is with us. Nothing breaks or interrupts his presence with us.

A baptized person always is with Christ. All are born to live in and for Christ. This call unites all believers. When we take our first breath into eternity, our life is fully and completely one with Christ.

No human being thrives in isolation. We are bound to one another and to Christ by ties unbroken by time or eternity.

O Creator, you made us in love. We desire to live our lives loving you, our neighbor and ourselves in and through you.

Parish Mass Schedule: 9:30 AM Sunday

MERCY is where we BEGIN;
 the COMMON GOOD is what we AIM FOR.

Capability for leadership is someone who understands the limits of reality, recognizes financial constraints, attends to details, respects boundaries, appreciates the importance of the law, knows how to motivate, is able to summon the best out of oneself and others, and can challenge all to think beyond self-interest. The Catholic voter turns then to one capacious to lead out of mercy for the common good.

This, then, is whom we are called to elect: those who give testimony to the quality of mercy in the lives they live; who demonstrate their evident commitment to put the common good before their own; and who, with some degree of capability and success, convince us that they can lead in a transparent, accountable, realistic and sustainable way even those too cynical to believe that this what we Catholics are called to do.
